I don't know where I'm at with this book. SPOILER For one if his wife die when their son was two how comes he understand so much of what happen then? I would think that having lose his mother so young he would cling to his father. I would understand him not wanting to let his father out of his sight but to carry anger and resentment towards his father from two up to seven, just because he never saw his father cried when his mother die, just blew me away. Why in the middle of grieving his wife (whom die 5 years ago) he end up marking love to the dark skin women? yes she was comforting him but why it had to lead there? to me it was like i need to wrap this book up now so let me drop the sex in so i can finish the book. Let me drop in the creepy dream along with the sudden fall in love so we they can get their HEA. The book was so focus on Rowan that he himself don't even know why she gave up her good job in the USA to come to Hong Kong, It was just all about William and Rowan which Ms. Grenier would stop referring to the heroines in her books as the dark skin women and the young women. YES we know the female is black so there is no longer any need to keep on referring to her like that. Is this your way of not writing the wrong name?

Loved loved this book! Iris Roman and William was a love story in it's finest. Question how do you tear down a emotional wall....."With Love of course". It was one of the best book I've read in awhile. William (Roman's son) was a little boy who went after what he wanted and it was Iris . He knew from the start that she was the only woman he needed in his life. Iris made him act with respect and act like child not a spoiled brat who he was. Now don't get it twisted Roman was a "MAN". who had issues serious issues guilt . Iris handled him like a pro. I like that Iris wasn't a weak character she stood her ground when dealing with Roman. Again I loved the writing and how the characters were developed. I would definitely recommend reading it. Susan

This book was sweet. Rowan was a widower and single father. He struggles with his grief and his poor relationship with his son William. Iris moved to Hong Kong to escape her ex. She is looking for a job but has yet to find one. She saves William from being hit by a car one day while she is out. He becomes attached and Rowan offers her a job. Iris sets off to bring father and son together. This was a nice mix of sweet and sexy.

Cristina has another good one here I loved the relationship between Iris and William it makes your heart warm and to know that a child could feel love for perfect stranger and then turn around rekindle his bond with his father is still grieving the loss of his late wife, then find his own self falling in love too great job in not rushing the relationship between these two.

What does Iris do after she finds out her boyfriend cheated. She moved halfway around the world. What does Rowan do after his wife dies he mourns for years. The in a grieving , distant child and you get a very good read. I received an advanced copy for my honest review

I enjoyed this BWAM romance. Iris and Rowan are both very likable characters and are going through some tough issues. I enjoyed how they made each other better people, through their interaction. Enjoyed the storyline and how everything ended up.

I didn't connect with the two main characters in the story. Not quite sure if I liked this story at all. I haven't really enjoyed the last 3 books by this author. I didn't even attempt to read the bonus story. I think it best I take a break from this author. My rating is really 2 1/2 stars.
