Customer Reviews

4.5 Nalini Singh's new anthology features four stories set at various points within the Psy-Changeling world. Echo of Silence features Psy Tk Stefan who resides in the underwater station, Alaris, and according to Nalini's Author's Note at the beginning of the book takes place early on in the series after Visions of Heat. Tazia is an engineer who, literally, works on Alaris fixing odds and ends and making sure the station remains working. She's intrigued by the cold Psy who keeps hovering around her orbit. As workers on Alaris are required to go topside every few months, Taz spends time with Stefan and starts to see beyond his cold Silent exterior. I liked the interplay between Stefan (Psy) and Tazia (human). As a longtime reader of the series and currently caught up on all the books I was mostly interested in where this story is supposed to take place within the timeline of the main series, in that it takes place very early on when there's still a pretty big division between Psy and the Changelings and Humans. It's just interesting to see what's actually been going on under the sea since the beginning of the series :) Dorian of course involves the DarkRiver sentinel, and it was a quick read and takes place at various times in Dorian's life, but I really loved the early look at many of the characters we all know and love: Lucas, Mercy, Clay, Vaughn, etc. It just further solidifies the familial feelings between them all. If you're a longtime reader of the series you'll know the specific before and after issue this short deals with in Dorian's life. Partners in Persuasion features a SnowDancer male submissive and a DarkRiver female dominate which, I believe I read in on of Nalini's newsletters, is the first pairing of this kind.

This collection of new stories in the Psy/Changeling world gives a pleasurable added dimension to the novels in the series. We find out more about characters whose names have been mentioned previously such as Felix and Desiree, while getting more in depth background plus well known favorites who have had full novels like Dorian. Kenji and Garnet, who have been popping up throughout the series and making people yearn to know their story, finally get their say. Echo of Silence Tazia Nerif, a human working in the deep sea station, Alaris, owned by the Changeling BlackSea group, is very attracted to the Psy commander of the station, Stefan. He is a strong Tk (telekinetic) who ostensibly is a perfect emotionless Psy. Stefan was to be an arrow, but it seems his silence may not have been so flawless after all. Tazia has been grieving a loss while working her dream job at the station. Stefan has secrets that if known, could send him to mind-wiping rehabilitation. While working together on a special project topside, both find what was missing in their lives. Dorian This entry comprises several vignettes in Dorian's life related to his inability to shift as a young boy and going through adjusting to being fully cat after his beloved Shaya gifts him with that personal miracle. Dorian has quite a learning curve to figure out how to function comfortably in both forms. As always his pack, DarkRiver, has Dorian's back but in their own tough love way of the cats. How Dorian handles his latency at different stages of his life combined with the deep and profound joy that is his after being able to shift gives deeper dimension to his story.
